on the semiotics of climate justice too hot

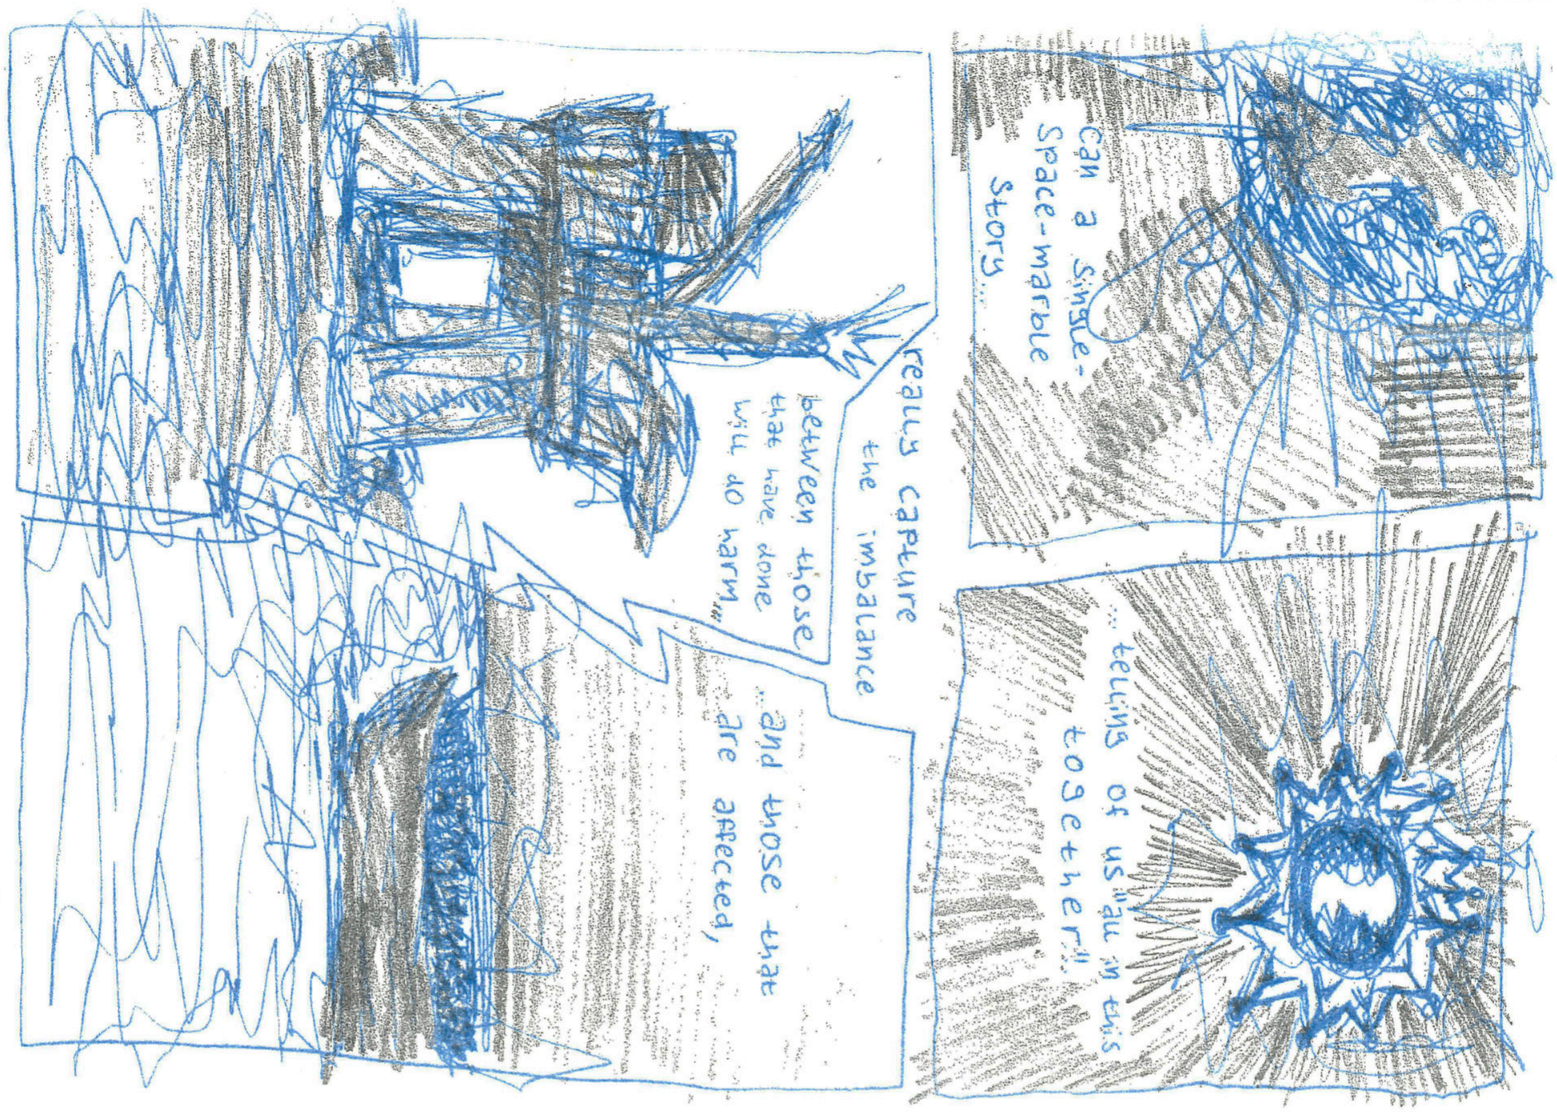
Can a blue and green close really represent...
...the floods...
...the fires...

...the sorrow,
or the grief over tomorrow
?



or does it shift responsibility, ignore oppresion based on race, age, sexuality & gender, class, origin, ability and delay attemps to keep our fundamental needs protected?

what can be said with fatal certainty:

far-right parties winning elections around the world

2024 was 1.5°C above pre-industrial levels

if its goal was to inspire change,

calls for remigration

swedish state plans more mines in sápmi gulf stream on the verge of collapse emissions have been rising since the paris agreement

we failed.

amnesty: israel is committing genocide in gaza so then what is the visual Lansuage of the new,

intersection-al, "no-logo", "how-to-blow-up-a-pipeline" militant, queer Climate justice movement?